Mrs Elisabeth Borne, the previous Minister of Transport, had hitherto retained her initial post in addition to Ecology. Mr. Djebbari represents one of these young people who quickly joined President Macron during his presidential campaign in 2017. Jean Baptiste Djebbari was noticed and taken into account in the eyes of the executive, in the spring of 2018, when he was rapporteur during the review of the railway pact, the vast law reforming the SNCF which had provoked the most long strike in the history of French rail. It now addresses, his appointment the two major issues to be solved, the sale of Aeroports de Paris, ADP (For which a petition against this privatization has been circulating for a year) and the takeover of the company Aigle Azur which went bankrupt and is desperate for a buyer, including Air France ...

JEAN BAPTISTE DJEBBARI IS AN EXPERT OF AIR TRANSPORT-----

Jean Baptiste Djebbari is originally from the Paris region, but with ties in Limousin, where he was parachuted during the 2017 parliamentary elections, Mr. Djebbari is first and foremost an expert in air transport. He graduated major in 2005 from the National School of Civil Aviation of Toulouse, then, pilot's license in hand, he led a career in business aviation, before embarking on politics after a meeting with Emmanuel Macron in 2015. At the age of 37, Jean-Baptiste Djebbari is a professional in the sector: he is a training pilot and flew business jets for private customers. He continues to fly regularly. On the occasion of the privatization of Paris airports, he put forward a plan to bring back into the state finances part of the manna that would be produced by a renationalisation of the motorways at the end of the concession. The complex financial arrangement is only a project. But politically the young MP scored points.
